RELOCKING A LOAN

A relock is required when a lock commitment has expired or the maximum number or extensions has been reached. The relock will be calculated at the lesser of the expired lock price or current market price $-.125$. A relock may be committed up to the lesser of the initial lock period or 30 days.

If a lock has been expired for 30 days or more it is eligible for a new market lock without additional adjustment to pricing.

RELOCKING A LOAN (ADVANTAGE PLUS)

A relock is required when a lock commitment has expired or the maximum number or extensions has been reached. The relock will be calculated at the lesser of the expired lock price or current market price. There is an additional $-.300$ applied to a relock. A relock may be committed for a lock period of 30 days.

If a lock has been expired for 45 days or more it is eligible for a new market lock without additional adjustment to pricing.
